

BRIXTON 3320

March 31st. 1939.

Dear Sir,

I enclose my application form together with P.O. for 2s/6d. for membership of the Anti-Partition League.

I would like to make a suggestion regarding propaganda. It is essential that propaganda will have to be used by means of the written word as well as by word of mouth, and I would suggest that it would be useful for the League to acquire several copies of a few good books which could be borrowed by members both for their own reading and to lend to others whose sympathy for the cause it is desired to arouse. I would be pleased to give a copy of "Ireland the New Ally" by John Gibbons, or some similar book if the League were to start such a library.

May I also draw your attention to the enclosed ~~article~~ letter which appeared in yesterday's "News Chronicle" ? I think the challenge about the N.I. General Election of 1938 being a proof of N.I.'s "loyalty" should be taken up at once by someone with firsthand knowledge of the gerry-mandering of the N.I. constituencies.

Yours very faithfully,

Francis Pilkington
