Copyright guidance

Prior to uploading it is the role of academics and research students to check their work for copyright compliance.

What if my work contains images, tables etc.?

You should have already sought permission from the rights holder to include any copyright material in your published work. Check the agreement to see if this covers further publication in an open access environment.

Things to consider:

<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Images of other people's work	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Photographs
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Graphs or other visual representations copied from other works	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Maps
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Large sections of quoted text	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Sections from musical scores
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Sound recordings	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Film clips

If there is doubt, academics or research students should obtain permissions from rights holders so they are aware that their content may be republished. These agreements should be retained in electronic format in case a permission is queried at some point in the future.

Further advice can be sought from openaccess@londonmet.ac.uk

Articles

Many publishers will allow for papers published in their journals to be deposited in an institutional repository, subject to certain conditions. SHERPA/FACT <http://www.sherpa.ac.uk/fact/> is a tool to help researchers check if the journals in which they wish to publish their results comply with their funder's requirements for open access to research. The SHERPA/RoMEO database <http://www.sherpa.ac.uk/romeo/> shows the various publisher policies, simply search on the name of the journal or the name of the publisher and this will show the policy on whether uploading to an open access repository is permitted, and which version of the article is allowed. The How Can I Share It? website <http://www.howcanishareit.com/> may also be useful regarding the major publishers' sharing policies.

Terminology

Pre-prints

Author's final draft prior to peer review. (Not acceptable for the REF as must be peer-reviewed).

Post-prints

Peer-reviewed version of the paper. May be a Word document.

Publisher PDF

The version as it appears in the journal.

DOI

A digital object identifier (DOI) is a character string (a "digital identifier") used to uniquely identify a digital object, such as an electronic document.

Metadata about the object is stored in association with the DOI name and this metadata may include a location, such as a URL, where the object can be found. The DOI for a document remains fixed over the lifetime of the document, whereas its location and other metadata may change. Referring to an online document by its DOI provides more stable linking than simply referring to it by its URL, because if its URL changes, the publisher need only update the metadata for the DOI to link to the new URL.

Which version should I upload?

London Met order of preference for depositing research:

1. Publisher PDF (where permitted)
2. Post-print
3. Pre-print

Important! REF 2021

From 1st April 2018 the REF 2021 open access policy will require outputs published in peer reviewed journals and conference proceedings to be deposited as soon after the point of acceptance as possible, and no later than three months after this date. A deposit exception will become active from 1st April 2018 to allow outputs unable to meet this deposit timescale to remain compliant if they are deposited up to three months after the date of publication. Researchers must deposit the accepted author manuscript (post-print). The policy allows for publisher embargoes to be respected.

Publisher embargo

An embargo is a period of time whereby the latest article is made unavailable unless a user has paid for access or gains access via an institutional subscription. This is for the publisher to gain revenue. For work deposited under a publisher embargo, it must meet the access requirements within one month of the end of the embargo period. The embargo period will begin at the point of first publication. It should be noted that many publishers do not have embargo periods.

Step 5

The screenshot shows the 'Edit item' page for 'Faith-based Organisations, Development and the World Bank (abstract)'. At the top, there is a navigation menu with options: Type, Upload, Details, Subjects, Deposit. Below this is a secondary menu with '< Previous', 'Save and Return', 'Cancel', and 'Next >'. The main content area is titled 'Add a new document' and contains the following text: 'To upload a document to this repository, click the Browse button below to select the file and the Upload button to upload it to the archive. You may then add additional files to the document (such as images for HTML files) or upload more files to create additional documents. You may wish to use the SHERPA RoMEO tool to verify publisher policies before depositing.' Below the text are two tabs: 'File' and 'From URL'. Under the 'File' tab, there is a 'Choose File' button and the text 'No file chosen'. At the bottom of the form, there are navigation buttons: '< Previous', 'Save and Return', 'Cancel', and 'Next >'. Two callout boxes provide additional instructions: one on the left says 'Either upload a file - then click Next ...' with an arrow pointing to the 'Choose File' button; one on the right says '... or enter the URL where your item can be found online - then click Next.' with an arrow pointing to the 'From URL' tab.

Either upload a file - then click Next ...

... or enter the URL where your item can be found online - then click Next.

N.B. Some publishers impose an embargo on when an article can be deposited in a repository. Publishers' embargos can vary in length from 6 to 18 months after publication; details will normally be included in your copyright agreement. It is important to deposit the version that complies with publisher copyright policies. The SHERPA/RoMEO database is a useful resource for checking details of standard publisher policies.
