SUBSIDIARY PUBLICATION SERIES

This series was devised to provide new introductions to texts published in the main series in which the original introductions needed updating in line with developments in the field since they were written. The new introductions are also envisaged as a means of making the texts more accessible to students and non-specialists by situating them within their literary genre and their historical context. However they are not intended to replace the original introductions but to supplement them. On the occasion of reprints of the original volumes the opportunity is taken to insert them with the original introduction as additional introductory material. The purpose of publishing them independently as a subsidiary series is to make them available to students and other interested readers who may not wish to acquire the relevant main series volume. In recent years the Subsidiary Series has been expanded to include the proceedings of annual seminars which the Society has established in order to provide a fuller consideration of certain key texts published in the main series than is possible within the limits of an introduction.

HISTORICAL DICTIONARY OF GAELIC PLACENAMES FOCLÓIR STAIRIÚIL ÁITAINMNEACHA NA GAELIGE

The new Historical Dictionary of Gaelic Placenames, prepared by the Locus Project in the Department of Early and Medieval Irish at University College Cork, is the first of its kind to appear for almost 100 years. Volumes devoted to names beginning with the various letters of the alphabet will be published at regular intervals. For ease of consultation, all names are recorded in their early modern forms, and accompanying each volume is an index of anglicised forms of the Gaelic names.
