Dear Mr. Hickey.

Re the utilisation of "Lester, Ireland, Britain,"

Mr. Hartnett (in letter received to-day) writes:-

"I have written the Secretary of the Finance Fair Publicity Committee and shall advise you of the result of his reply when I receive it. At the same time, it might be well to get Hickey or one of the London people to write them, advocating the same cause. I think we shall succeed in getting them to fall in with your suggestion."

If you think this book contains matter which would be serviceable in this country, and would be good propaganda...
possibly you would be kind enough to write the Secretary
as Mr. Hartnett suggests.

I spoke to the telephone to Mr. Gore - Boston, as you suggested. He says that duty is leviable on books published in Britain: and that he is interested in not in books already published here.
With best wishes and grateful thanks for your interest.

Yours very sincerely,
W. S. Arundel.

Enclosure - one reply to letter of May 12.
